

In order to be a registered voter a person had to have a freehold property. A freeholder was a person who possessed his estate, whether in land or houses, in fee (i.e. for himself and his heirs forever), or on a lease for one or more lives. Since 1793 catholics who held such freeholds were eligible to vote.

The number of registered voters in Co.Cavan in 1826 is officially given as 7814, of whom 486 were £50 freeholders, 218 £20 freeholders and the rest, 7,110 forty-shilling freeholders. Almost all the forty-shilling freeholders were leasehold freeholders.

A landlord created these freeholds primarily if not exclusively in order to create his political power, for it was the accepted practice that a freeholder cast his vote for his landlord or for the person whom the landlord designated. If he voted against his landlord's desire, he could easily find himself

1. denied a renewal on the death of the person on whose life he had taken the lease
2. called on to pay arrears of rent.

It was thus a hazardous venture especially on the part of a forty shilling freeholder, who was poor and utterly dependent on his patch of land, to disobey his landlord's wish on election day. Votes had to be given openly in the presence of the agents of the candidates. A landlord could thus infallibly know how his tenant voted. (Dr.T.P.Cunningham,Breifne Vol.2,1962)
